

Island Cottage
Minster Street, Wilton, Salisbury

An attractive Grade II listed period cottage in an idyllic waterside setting

Island Cottage offers a unique and characterful living environment formerly part of the Wilton Estate, sitting alongside partner-properties Island House and Island Lodge, and encircled by pretty watercourses. This unique location truly enjoys the best of both worlds with substantial grounds, in a private location, whilst lying within striking distance of all the facilities that Wilton has to offer.

The property

Set on an island, surrounded by tributaries of the River Wylde and believed to date to mid C18, with later additions, Island Cottage is a charming property. Its façade features embellished brickwork, heritage columned porches, decorative circular and arched apertures, and sash windows. Internally, numerous period features remain and the classically-presented interiors offer elegance, versatility and potential for further improvement, with rooms arranged over two floors and within two linked wings of accommodation.

The property is accessed via the front door which opens into the entrance hall. On the ground floor, two spacious reception rooms currently provide an impressive drawing room with feature dado rail, a fireplace, built in cupboard with display alcove above and a pretty arch top window. The dual aspect sitting room enjoys external door offering an easy transition to the rear garden along with built in bookshelves.

With modern cabinetry, the bright kitchen is adjoined by a pantry and a sociable dining area which benefits from a skylight window and French doors opening to the outside. There is also access to a ground floor cloak/shower room.

Two rooms, positioned to either side of the sitting room, present as ground floor bedrooms, with an adjacent family bathroom which complements an individual shower room.

Further bedroom quarters are available via two separate stairways which rise to the independent first floor settings. The original staircase leads to a landing which serves as a study area with built-in storage and bookshelves, this in turn leads to the large, triple aspect principal bedroom which has fitted wardrobe storage and a built-in dressing table, with access to an en suite bathroom. In the opposing wing, an additional en suite bedroom shares the upper level with flexible-use spaces (currently accessed via a loft ladder from the hall) giving potential to create an en suite bedroom with dressing area (subject to the necessary consents).

Outside

A swathe of gravelled driveway at the front of the home offers parking for a number of vehicles. The extensive private garden for Island Cottage enjoys clipped evergreen hedging and ancient walls creating partition and a series of outdoor rooms. Garden features include paved and gravelled walkways through the plot, over a bridge and alongside the watercourses; areas of lawn interspersed with mature shrubs and trees, and a vintage greenhouse in a designated corner for cultivation. There is an additional paddock with river frontage and a delapidated wood store. A good-sized outbuilding offers a garage and workshop space while a pretty summer house provides a sheltered spot to enjoy the garden throughout the seasons.

Location

The thriving market town of Wilton (once the capital of Wessex) offers a range of amenities including a bakery, convenience stores, medical and dental surgeries, a Post Office, cafés, public houses, eateries

Wilton House is the historic home to the Earl of Pembroke, its gardens and popular adventure playground are open to the public, whilst the house has been used to film the likes of Bridgerton and The Crown.
